Summary: On the way to drop his girlfriend home after quad biking in Dubai deserts, 15-year-old Bradley Starr runs over a black kitten intentionally and kills it. Bradley falls ill with a mysterious disease immediately after the incident. He has terrifying nightmares and experiences paralyzing paranormal activities. His girlfriend is mad at him for what he did and wants nothing to do with him anymore. Bradley is an ill-mannered American teenager who moved to Dubai recently with his parents because of his neurosurgeon father's word. Bradley's mental and physical health progressively deteriorates to the point he is transferred to the hospital, where it becomes clear that his condition is paranormal in nature. A priest and a lady medium are called to the hospital. The lady medium discovers that two very angry entities are causing Bradley's problems, a demon and a Jinn. But she cannot yet say why. Arrangements are done for a priest and an Islamic scholar to help get Bradley rid of both entities. Bradley is released from the hospital the following day when he feels a bit better. His girlfriend, who found out he is unwell, pays him a visit and sees a changed, well-mannered and kinder version of Bradley. She finds out that a demon had Bradley under control when he ran over the kitten. She forgives Bradley and wants him to be strong and to be a fighter. An Islamic Scholar, a priest, and the lady medium arrive at Bradley's house sometime later, where the medium discovers that the demon is angry because one night, when Bradley was still in America, he was drunk and peed on some people's graves in a cemetery. The spirits got so mad at him that they called a demon on him. She also finds out the kitten Bradley killed was actually a child Jinn who had shape-shifted into a kitten and now, the kitten's parents want revenge. The priest and the Islamic scholar start praying. The priest manages to exorcise the demon. But the Jinn does not want to leave Bradley's body. The father of the baby Jinn is so mad that he wants Bradley dead, too. The Islamic scholar's efforts to get the Jinn to leave Bradley's body are futile. Bradley's condition gets dangerously worse. Bradley's father begs the Jinn for forgiveness. But the Jinn does not leave Bradley. Emotional pressure gives Bradley's father a heart attack when he gets to know the Jinn's intention is to actually kill Bradley. The Jinn makes Bradley stop breathing for a few minutes and kills him. Everybody is sure Bradley is dead. But the Jinn decides to forgive him at last and leaves his body. Bradley comes back to life.
